Law is a significant constituent of culture; it was and invariably is a decisive development factor deriving from the legacy of ancient Greece and Western Roman civilization. As a scientific discipline, it has been cultivated at universities from the beginning. Studium generale in Bologna, the first European university founded at the turn of the 11th century, was in fact a school gathering the most outstanding professors of Roman law and experts in canon law – the disciplines that provided favorable conditions for academic studies in medieval Europe. Likewise, Catholic universities, whose origins date back to the middle of the 19th century, formed legal faculties.

At the John Paul II Catholic University of Lublin law as a scientific discipline has been pursued since the very beginning of the University existence, i.e. since the year 1918, the same year in which Poland regained independence. The Faculty of Law and Socio-Economic Sciences and the Faculty of Canon Law were then incorporated into the University structure. The course in canon law has been functioning uninterrupted since then. However, the study of law ceased to be taught for the years 1952-1981 as a result of the dissolution of the Section of Law of the Faculty of Law and Socio-Economics Sciences caused by the communist authorities. At present, the Faculty of Law, Canon Law and Administration, the successor of those faculties, continues the ninety-year-old juridical tradition at our Alma Mater by combining the studies of law, canon law, administration and recently: European studies.

The characteristic feature of studies at our University concentrates on the universal and humanistic, and not only the professional aspect of education. According to this assumption, the curricula, besides the core, fundamental legal subjects, additionally encompass general lectures on issues pertaining to the world of values, ethics, Catholic social science and the discipline of thinking.

The Faculty of Law, Canon Law and Administration having its share in the University mission, following the idea of Deo et Patriae, endeavors to train future lawyers, so that they will be capable of boldly facing the contemporary challenges and become creatively involved in the process of national transformation as well as being able to assume the new tasks necessitated by the technological progress, globalisation and Polish integration with the European Union structures and utilize their skills and education pro publico bono.

THE MISSION OF JOHN PAUL II CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY OF LUBLIN

On 27 July 1918, on the initiative of the Rev. Idzi Radziszewski, the Polish Episcopate established the Catholic University of the Sacred Heart of Jesus in Lublin with Radziszewski taking the office of rector (university president). After the death of Pope John Paul II, the University Senate convened for an extraordinary meeting on 4 April 2005 resolved to name the University after John Paul II as homage paid to the great Polish Pope.

The University's mission is to conduct research in the spirit of harmony between science and faith, as well as educating and nurturing the Catholic intelligentsia and fostering Christian culture. The identity of the University is manifested in: special attention to the high level of research and graduate education, the study and dissemination of the Christian vision of man and the world against the backdrop of contemporary challenges, the concern for the preservation and cultivation of the most precious traditions of the homeland and, with this end in view, the formation of young generations; moreover, this identity is demonstrated through the University's pursuing policies related to its location in Lublin, the city hosting the Union of Lublin establishing the Polish-Lithuanian Commonwealth in 1569. It is the University's name, the name of its patron and its motto Deo et Patrie that urge the academic community to advocate its identity.

The historical legacy of Lublin calls for an active involvement - also in collaboration with other universities and non-academic institutions - in the affairs of the city and the region.

Multinational traditions of the Republic, as well as the situation of the city near the eastern Polish border, indicate the trends in international cooperation and lead to the strengthening of ties between the nations of the Old Continent, and combine the achievements of Eastern and Western culture.

With respect and reverence, John Paul II Catholic University of Lublin recognizes and continues the great Polish pope's work of life and teaching; the Pope himself adjured the University to do so during his memorable visit to Lublin on 9 June 1987, "University! Alma Mater! You are embraced by the same love that Christ loved unto the end. You are embraced by the Eucharist. Remain in this beneficiary embrace of the Redeemer of the world. Serve the Truth! If you serve the Truth - you serve Freedom. And liberation of man and the Nation. You serve Life!"

Fragments of the Preamble of the Statute of KUL

*„University! Serve the Truth!”

HISTORY OF THE FACULTY

The origins of legal studies at the Catholic University of Lublin are strictly associated with the history and the emergence of the University, which opened in 1918. The University founding fathers, who in the interwar period conceived a universal research and educational program, envisaged a program in law and created two juridical faculties: Faculty of Canon Law and Moral Sciences and the Faculty of Law and Socio-Economic Sciences with the Legal Section being of first concern.

Faculty of Canon Law and Moral Sciences

In the interwar period, the Faculty of Canon Law was the only autonomous faculty of this discipline in Poland. At other academic centers in Poland (Krakow, Lviv, Warsaw, Vilnius), canon law was taught within theological departments. After the end of World War II, the Faculty of Canon Law resumed its activity and operated continuously until 1984, when it was incorporated in the newly established Faculty of Canon Law and Legal Studies.

Faculty of Law and Socio-Economic Sciences

In the period from the University's inception to 1952, law at the Catholic University of Lublin was taught within the Faculty of Law and Socio-Economic Sciences. The Lublin-based Faculty of Law was one of six others that operated in the Second Polish Republic.

The first instructors employed by the faculty arrived from various universities, primarily from Jan Kazimierz University in Lviv. The staff permanently associated with the faculty included: Roman Longchamps de Berier, an outstanding civil law expert, and Zbigniew Pazdro, a professor of administrative law. Other researchers and teachers of long standing permanently associated with the University were: Ignacy Czuma, Wit Klonowiecki, Henryk Dembiński, Zdzisław Papierkowski, Antoni Pastuszka; affiliated with the Catholic University, not only formally but also ideologically, they continued their work after World War II.

The years after World War II saw a rapid development of the Legal Section at the Faculty of Law and Socio-Economic Sciences. In 1944, the Catholic University of Lublin was the first institution of higher education on Polish territory that reopened during the ongoing warfare. However, the development of the faculty, including its Legal Section, was stopped following the decision of the Minister of Education worded in a letter dated 23 June 1949 and addressed, "To the Citizen Rector of the Catholic University of Lublin." By invoking the relevant decree, the minister ordered "a gradual dissolution of the Legal Section of the Faculty of Law and Socio-Economic Sciences at the Catholic University of Lublin." The Legal Section ultimately ceased to operate in 1952.

The dissolution of the Faculty of Law and Socio-Economic Sciences marked the first stage of a deliberate policy implemented by the Communist authorities that aimed to hinder the impact of the Catholic University of Lublin on the training and education of academic youth. The Communists' utmost objective was to ideologise and exploit law for the regime's purposes.

Faculty of Canon Law and Legal Sciences

The initiative of restoring the Legal Section was promoted by the Rev. Prof. Józef Krukowski, the then dean of Faculty of Canon Law, at the turn of the 1970s. The section reopened in 1981 at the Faculty of Canon Law. In 1984 the faculty was renamed the Faculty of Canon Law and Legal Sciences.

From the very beginning, among the section's personnel there were: Rev. Józef Krukowski, Rev. Henryk Karbownik, Rev. Henryk Misztal, and professors who, despite their achievements and expertise, were not able to find employment at state universities because of their political views or activities: Adam Strzembosz, Wiesław Chrzanowski and Władysław Rostocki. The Legal Section continued to grow and new researchers were employed: Wojciech Łączkowski, Jan Widacki, Jerzy Wratny, Hanna Suchocka. In addition, the section admitted lecturers from other academic centers. From Maria Curie-Skłodowska University: Jan Ziemiński, Henryk Reniger, Andrzej Wąsek, Wanda Wójtowicz, Marek Kuryłowicz, Mirosław Granat; from the Jagiellonian University: Edward Drozd; from Warsaw University: Tadeusz Ereciński and Marek Safian.

Faculty of Canon and Civil Law

In 1989 the name of the faculty was again modified to the Faculty of Canon and Civil Law. Rev. Prof. Marian Stasiak was appointed to the post of the faculty dean and remained on his post until 1999. In the 1990's, the following professors were employed at the Section of Law: Jan Świtka, Andrzej Szajkowski, Henryk Cioch, Józef Skoczylas, Stanisław Wrzosek and Kazimierz Kruczałak. Since the time of the Section revival, the number of young scholars has gradually increased; they are mostly the graduates of the Faculty of Law.

INSTITUTE OF CANON LAW

Head of the Institute:

Secretary:
Rev. Ambroży Skorupa,
Hab. JCD, University Professor

Office: Magdalena Sawa, MA
(room: C-527; phone: +48 81 44 53 730)
Al. Racławickie 14, 20-950 Lublin

Canon law studies at the Catholic University of Lublin go back to 1918. They have been conducted continuously since the University's inception. Currently, the Institute of Canon Law is comprised of 9 departments. Its personnel are 15 scholars, among them eminent professors of law, scholars from the Polish Academy of Sciences and renowned, international experts of extensive research and teaching experience. The institute leads the way among the research centers pursuing canon law studies and research. The institute is authorized to confer doctoral and postdoctoral degrees in canon law.

The institute offers courses in canon law as a major on a full-time and part-time basis. The institute is accredited by the National Accreditation Commission, has implemented the European Credit Transfer System (ECTS) and offers international student exchange under the ERASMUS program.

The training objective is to introduce students to the law of the Catholic Churches. The introduction to the study of canon law involves insight into theology, philosophy and history. Further studies include mainly administrative and constitutional law of the Church, sacramental law, with particular emphasis on matrimonial law, monastic law, Church property law and public law. The curriculum lists compulsory courses in ecclesiastical procedural law (matrimonial, canonization, administrative and criminal). The students may also participate in elective classes. During the final year, the undergraduates are assigned to professional training in episcopal courts. National and international conferences and open lectures organized by the institute's staff and students furnish some more opportunities of broadening the knowledge on the subject.

Beginning with the academic year 1998-1999, the students of canon law may elect the law of the Eastern Catholic Churches as their specialization; this includes a special educational program, covering the entire Eastern codification, the history of legal institutions of the Eastern Catholic Churches and the elements of liturgical law and Eastern sacramental studies.

The Institute of Canon Law is governed by the Statute defining the institute's aims and responsibilities; it was approved by the Holy See and made effective on 1 October 2008. These aims and responsibilities are inter alia: to cultivate and promote the study of canon law and to train the canon law research and teaching personnel; to deliver a scholarly and practical training to the personnel involved in administration, ecclesiastical tribunals and parish ministry; to offer courses to undergraduate and postgraduate students of other majors at the University.

INSTITUTE OF EUROPEAN STUDIES

Head of the Institute:
ARTUR KUŚ, Hab. PhD, University Professor

Secretary: Edyta Krzysztofik, PhD

The Institute of European Studies was established on 1 October 2009. The Institute's creation was preceded by the opening of a new major in European Studies during the academic year of 2008/2009. Today, the Institute of European Studies is comprised of 4 departments: Department of European Union Law, Department of Political Science, Department of Negotiation and Mediation and the Department of the Foundations of Civil Law and International Private Law. The institute offers programs in the following study options: full-time first and second degree, part-time first and second degree

European studies at the Catholic University of Lublin is an interdisciplinary project aimed to increase interest in the history and culture of Europe, and develop the skills of understanding and analyzing social, political, legal and economic developments occurring in the European Union.

The personnel of the Institute of European Studies are experienced professors lecturing at domestic and foreign universities. This group includes theorists and practitioners of law, political scientists, economists, sociologists, historians and psychologists. Owing to the international networking of the institute's researchers, the students may apply for various types of trainings and internships, e.g. in the European Parliament (arranged by the MEPs lecturing at the institute), central and local governmental units managing EU funds, the Rule of Law

Institute and other NGOs.

The curriculum provides for extensive foreign language training. Besides obligatory English, the students learn another European language. Many classes at the faculty and the University are taught in foreign languages. Students can also benefit from study visits abroad within the Erasmus program.

The fact that European studies are held at the Faculty of Law, Canon Law and Administration allows the graduates to be au fait with the those areas of interest that fall within the European legal regulations. They become experts in European affairs and acquire the skills highly sought-after in the EU labor market. European studies offer not only the acquisition of theoretical knowledge, but also important practical skills. A graduate of European studies is a specialist groomed for working in European institutions, as well as the central and local government, cultural and social institutions, both domestically and internationally. These studies also provide professional training to work in both the public and private sectors. Owing to much emphasis laid on foreign language instruction, a graduate of BA studies may continue his or her European studies training in MA programs held in English.

The Center for American Law (CAL) has been functioning at the Faculty of Law, Canon Law and Administration since 1998 and plays a vital part in the development of research and didactic cooperation between the faculty staff and professors representing a number of American research centers. Since the academic year 2008/2009, the classes have been incorporated in courses taught by the Institute of Law.

From 1998 through 2002, CAL operated within the Department of History of State and Law. Thanks to the American Bar Association and the program of legal culture development in the countries of East-Central Europe, the spring of 1998 saw the first Lublin-based lectures in English considering various issues of American law. Meanwhile, the faculty began to network with the Chicago-Kent Law School, Illinois Institute of Technology. The cooperation of Prof. R. Warner, Prof. D.R. Swenson and Prof. G. Górski culminated in the opening of the Center for American Law on 1 March 1999. The agreement sanctioning the integration of the School of American Law with the then Faculty of Canon and Secular Law was signed by the deans: Rev. Prof. Marian Stasiak and Prof. Henry H. Perritt, Jr. of the Chicago-Kent Law School.

Today, CAL offers 17 elective subjects with English as the language of instruction. Having successfully completed twelve selected courses within 6 semesters, the graduate is awarded the certificate of graduation from the School of American Law.

The regular classes held at the school are: American constitutional law, legal advocacy, torts, human rights in practice, criminal law (alternated with criminal procedure), negotiation (Prof. D.R. Swenson),

American judicial system (Prof. G. Górski), bankruptcy law, family law (K. Maćkowska, PhD), legal reasoning, research and writing, moot court (M. Rzeszót, MA); the school also offers immersion courses delivered by visiting American lawyers. In cooperation with the Chicago-Kent College of Law, the school hosted the following lectures: Legal Drafting (C. Webber), International Business Transactions (D. Gerber), Mergers&Acquisitions (Ch. Leslie, S. Cho), Introduction to Business Law (T. Hill), Comparative Law (S. Harding), Securities Law (M. Scodro), Judicial Decision-Making (V. Gross).

A permanent cooperation has also been established with Mr. Charles F.X. Szymanski, a lawyer and acting director of the American Corner at the University of Łódź, who teaches classes in arbitration.

In 2006, the faculty exchanged correspondence with the Centre for International Legal Studies based in Salzburg, Austria. The director of the centre, Prof. Dennis Campbell, advanced the proposal that the Faculty of Law, Canon Law and Administration should participate in his project of gathering a team of experienced American lawyers, wishing to promote the knowledge about the American legal system in East-Central Europe. The Catholic University of Lublin was a Polish pioneer of this program.

Since its inception, CAL has been actively engaged in research projects not only at but also outside the University. For instance, it co-organized a number of international conferences such as: Poland: Ten Years of Economic Transformation (1999); Transformation of Judicial Law in Europe and the World in the Nineteenth Century (2000); Safety on the Internet (2002); The United States of America after 9/11: International and Legal Repercussions (2003); Visa - a Passport to a Better World, or Merely a Political Bargain Counter? (2008, in cooperation with the Forum of Young Diplomats).

THE CENTER FOR ADVANCING LEGAL SKILLS

DIRECTOR: Delaine R. Swenson,
JD, University Professor

Room C-721, Phone: +48 81 44 53 721;
e-mail: cfals@kul.pl

The Center for Advancing Legal Skills (CALs) was established at the Faculty of Law, Catholic University of Lublin, to facilitate legal skills development among law students and legal practitioners. The founder of the center is Prof. Delaine R. Swenson.

Hitherto, the importance of legal skills development has been a neglected aspect of legal education in Poland. Yet, quality academic education must be balanced with solid legal skills.

In pursuing its objectives, for some years, the center has been organizing the High School Moot Court Competition. The project aims at promoting rhetorical skills and legal English among high schoolers. The competition involves the participants role-playing a US mock jury trial in English. They assume the roles of lawyers, prosecutors and witnesses.

The center invites students and legal practitioners to take part in moots so designed as to help develop confidence in handling actual trials. In parallel with the moots, training program are put in place covering legal rhetoric, human rights, negotiation and alternative dispute resolution. The participation in mock trials gives students the opportunity of practising the skills and knowledge acquired during university classes. Mock trials simulate U.S. court hearings (criminal and civil). In addition the Center runs an extensive international moot court program for University students that includes trials before the International Court of Justice, European Court of Human Rights, the Court of Justice of the European Union, as well as simulations of the European Union Constitutional Convention and Oxford-style debates.

One of the major projects of the centre is Street Law - Everyday Law program. Properly trained law students conduct a series of classes in high schools using interactive teaching methods. Doing so, they acquire both substantive knowledge and methodological competence. On the other hand, the high school pupils participating in such classes become familiar with some essential legal problems and obtain a wealth of useful information on law enforcement and application. The classes address practical issues, directly affecting young people. Among the discussed issues, there are: human rights, citizen's rights before the police, protection of personal rights, consumer rights, civil contracts concluded by minors, family relations and the right to good administration, protection of intellectual property rights on the Internet, corruption and methods of combating it. To date, the centre has trained over 100 law students - the project participants, who in turn trained about 3000 pupils from Lublin and the Lublin region.

Many of the current staff of the Faculty of Law were actively involved in the academic circle during their studies. The conferences organized and coordinated by the circle during the so-called Lawyers' Week enjoy keen interest of the academia. They are held annually in late April and early May. # UNIVERSITY LEGAL CLINIC

Supervisor:
Piotr Zakrzewski,

The idea of university legal clinics was conceived in the United States. Its primary purpose is to increase the availability of free legal aid to the most impoverished members of the community, and consequently, to foster the development of the foundations of civil society by facilitating the protection of individuals' subjective rights by means of any available legal means. For the law students who provide support under the supervision of University academics, to participate in the clinic teaches the practical application of classroom knowledge and correct identification and effective solution-finding for actual legal issues. It also teaches the right approach to individuals who face and report such problems and are often in a very difficult life situation; it also supports readiness to pro bono activity. The clinic is open to students of final classes, admitted after an enrolment procedure.

Pursuant to the an agreement between the Catholic University of Lublin and the Lublin Municipality, the students involved in the clinic have their duty hours in the offices of district councils: Bronowice, the Old Town, Tatary, South Węglin and Wieniawa. The clinic also collaborates with the Lublin branch of Caritas charitable organization, the Regional Information Centre for Victims of Crimes and Offences and with the Little Brothers of the Poor Association. The activity of the clinic enjoys a growing interest, as evidenced by the rising number of cases it is currently handling, as well as by the circle of local government units and NGOs interested in maintaining cooperation.
