Beyond Crowd Psychology

The Power of Agoral Gatherings

Frankfurt am Main, 2014.
188 pp., 1 b/w fig., 10 tables,
11 graphs

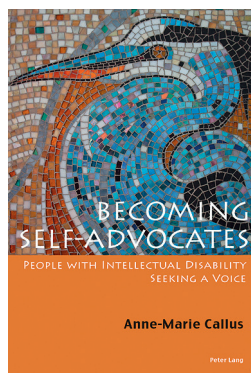

The concept of agoral gathering is a new approach in the study of collective behavior. Waves of agoral gatherings changed Central and Eastern Europe in the 1980s and 90s. This book interprets these large-scale political transformations in terms of peaceful collective behaviors as a political alternative for post-communist countries.

Becoming Self-Advocates

People with Intellectual Disability Seeking a Voice

Oxford, 2013. 296 pp., 5 tables, 5 fig.

People with intellectual disability cannot assume that they can speak up for and represent themselves. A host of socially-constructed factors act as barriers to their becoming self-advocates. This book analyses the nature of these factors and investigates how the label 'intellectual disability' is understood and interpreted.

Historical Memories in Culture, Politics and the Future

The Making of History and the World to Come

Oxford, 2014. 279 pp., 1 b/w fig.

This book is written to satisfy the individual's desire for intellectual stimulation, to sow in the mind the seed of new ideas, and involve the reader in productive debates about what is history, its meanings and sub-meanings. It proposes the concept of compartmentalization of behaviour by focussing on the English psyche, and on global trends.
